Built for serious bouts of ironing, steam generators are designed to produce large quantities of high pressure steam to blast through creases. Steam needs plenty of water, so unlike a standard design that can only hold enough for the odd spray or blast of steam they come with a separate water tank steam generator.

<http://clinicamaxclin.com/images/canon-powershot-sx210-is-manual-focus.pdf>

As a result steam generators are usually double, or even triple the size of a standard iron giving them a bulky footprint that's often difficult to store away. The Bosch is no different; the base measures a chunky 44 x 23 x 19cm and has a 1litre removable water tank for easy filling. This makes setup very easy fill with water, turn on and let the pump suck up water for heating. When the green light turns on you're ready to go. The iron itself feels solid in the hand thanks to the tough rubber grip. Because there's no water tank inside it felt lightweight and manoeuvrable. The soleplate is made from ultra smooth easy gliding ceramic and has just 12 steam holes at the tip. On a good day it'll take this reviewer at least 5 or 6 minutes to iron a shirt, but after he got used to the steam trigger he was, well, um, steaming through the ironing. The constant pressure cut effortlessly through even the most crumpled sections and while the tip isn't as button friendly as some we've tried, it almost halved our ironing time and doubled the quality. Even our oldest shirts got a new lease of life thanks to the steam, but be aware the high water content will leave your shirt feeling slightly damp, so if you've really had to work at the creases, hang it up for 5 minutes before wearing or storing. One small complaint; even our old 20 iron has wool, silk, cotton, synthetic written helpfully on the temperature controls. The Bosch just has black blobs, so you'll need to memorise the settings from the instructions or keep them handy. We also loved the vertical steaming that let us refresh a couple of suits and hard to iron dresses without resorting to dry cleaning. It's no substitute, but helped knock a good few of the elbow and knee creases out of a cotton suit. Added safety features include an auto shut off system which switches the iron off after 30 seconds if it is left face down or after 8 minutes if left standing.

The Bosch Sensixx B25L irons like a dream, but for the price we expected a bit more flash. The casing lacks the luxurious finish we'd expect for the price which is disappointing, especially if you haven't any cupboards big enough to store it away. The simple steam trigger and ceramic soleplate glide through creases, pleats, yolks and cuffs with the utmost of ease and while it might not excite you with its halfhearted industrial styling it'll get the job done doublequick and give you more time to do, well, anything but iron. It's expensive and bulky, and if you only iron as you go it'll probably be more hassle than it's worth, but if you have a family and find yourself doing piles of ironing each week consider it a fantastic time saving, life improving investment. be steady and robust so that you can place the ironing appliance on it. The board should be perforated to allow the steam to pass through the fibres of the fabric to soften it and make ironing easier. The ironing board cover should also be suitable to allow the flow of steam through. Your iron has a built-in thermostat controlling the temperature very precisely over the entire surface of the soleplate. The thermostat dial contains international markers with dots corresponding to three ironing temperatures. How do I use it As the steam produced is very hot, it softens the fibres and removes creases. Note Never use the vertical steam function on an item being worn by anyone. At the end of your ironing session, we would suggest that once your iron has cooled down, you should wipe over the soleplate and around the steam holes to remove any burned fibers that may have started collecting around the steam holes. We would advise ironing dark clothes inside out and using the correct temperature. If ironing mixed-fibre fabrics, set the temperature for the most fragile fibre. Important The iron takes longer to cool down than to heat up. We recommend that you start with fabrics to be ironed at a low temperature. However, it is necessary to regularly perform self-cleaning of the steam generator chamber in order to remove limescale.

Never use water containing additives starch, perfume, aromatic substances, softener, etc., condensation water e. g. clothes dryer water, refrigerator water, air conditioner water, rainwater, pure demineralized water or distilled water from store. These contain organic waste or minerals that condense under the influence of heat and cause spitting, brown dripping or premature aging of your device. Warning! Never touch the end of the anticalc valve. Set the thermostat control to Max and the steam control on DRY and switch on. Place the iron on its heel and leave to heat up for around 5 minutes. Unplug the iron then hold your iron horizontally above the sink. Steam, water and scale deposits will leave the steam chamber through the steam holes and the iron will be clean. At the end of the operation, push the anticalc valve back into position. When your iron is cold, you will also be able to use your vacuum to gently suction limescale and dirt that may have clogged the holes in the soleplate. Cleaning Use a damp soft cloth to wipe your iron and never use cleaners or solvents. If your iron has an autoclean function, refer to the instruction manual before using it. If safety is one of your main concerns, choose an iron that has an automatic cutoff function. Regularly check the water level to ensure that there is always enough. It is okay to use or store the iron even with a small amount of water remaining. When storing, please remove as much water as possible and store in an upright position. Warning The use of iron cleaner will cause damage to your soleplates autoclean coating. However, the majority of our irons will only produce steam when set on the 2 dot or 3 dot setting. When you look on your irons thermostat dial you will notice that the 2 dot and 3 dot settings have a shaded background, this indicates that the iron will produce steam when the dial is set inside this shaded area.
