We repair, refurbish, maintain, and service all types of industrial and commercial equipment. Unfortunately, we are NOT set up for repair of household items Any and all trademarks, trademark names, and service marks remain the property of their respective original equipment manufacturers. We do not influence nor are we in any way involved with the original equipment manufacturers. We do not control any facet of the manufacturing, distribution, or repair processes engaged by the OEM for any equipment listed on our website. Unless specifically noted, we do not offer factory authorized warranty service for any item. The Branson 2000Series system is process equipment for the joining of plastic parts using ultrasonic energy. It is the newest generation of product using this sophisticated technology for a variety of customer applications. We appreciate your business and are interested in helping you successfully use our products.

To contact Branson for help, use the following telephone numbers, or contact the field office nearest you business hours from 8 a.m. Use the following page to record necessary information. Plainly show the RGA number on the outside of cartons as well as inside the carton along with the reason for return. The slide system is based on eight sets of preloaded, permanently lubricated bearings. The CJ20 converter is used for the 1100, 2200, and 3300 Watt units. The following list describes the control features of the welder. Adjusts amount of air pressure applied to cylinder;. While this switch is pressed, power displays on both the NUMERIC DISPLAY and the POWER BARGRAPH. Holding RESET Reset Switch prevents a weld cycle from starting. Releasing RESET returns the welder to the ready state, if there are no nonresettable errors. This signal indicates when a start signal can be released. Some of these terms may not be available in all configurations AB Amplitude The amplitude at the horn face during the afterburst step. AB Delay Time delay between the end of the hold and the start of afterburst. Many components can be harmed if the unit is dropped, shipped under improper conditions or otherwise mishandled. 3.1.1 Environmental Specifications The Integrated Welder is an electronic unit that converts line voltage to ultrasonic energy. Many of its components can be harmed if the unit is dropped or otherwise mishandled. CAUTION Heavy Object The Integrated Welder is heavy. Handling, unpacking, and installation may require assistance or the use of a lifting device. It is shipped in a sturdy cardboard box. Some additional items are shipped in the box with the Integrated Welder. Table 3.3 When unpacking the Integrated Welder, take the following steps Step Action Unpack the Integrated Welder as soon as it arrives. If you are returning equipment for repair refer to Chapter 1 Safety and Support, Section 1.5 Returning Equipment for.

This chapter will bring the reader to the point at which the system is functionally “ready to weld”. Save the packing material. Do NOT attempt to disassemble the column from the stand, but always keep the column support clamped together. Remove the insert from the top of the box, which can contain the booster, converter, and the toolkit. Keep clear of moving parts and do not loosen clamps unless directed to do so. 4.5.1 Mounting the Stand Integrated Welder on Base The base must be bolted to your workbench to prevent tipping or undesired movement. You must choose a mounting location for the hub that will support the column and actuator, and provide the hardware to mount it. There are two DIP switches that Branson uses interchangeably. The following Figures illustrate each of them. This procedure may require two persons. If the converter and booster are not assembled, perform the following steps. Torque to 220 inlbs, 24.85 Nm. Table 4.8 Tools Tool EDP Number 20 kHz Torque Wrench 101063617. Mounting holes are also provided for the optional Branson leveling plate kit, which can be ordered in inch or metric. The base is a tapped for metric M101.5 hardware indicated by an “M”. To prevent equipment damage, adjust the stop so that the horn will not contact the fixture or nest when no workpiece is in place. This display is in addition to the mode LEDs. If you need assistance with your 2000series system, call your local Branson representative or contact Branson customer service by calling the appropriate department as indicated on Table 1.2 Branson. Its compact footprint conserves work space. It can be used for ultrasonic welding, inserting, staking, spot welding, swaging, and degating thermoplastic parts. A quickdisconnect fitting is suggested. Use a lockout device on the air line if required.

CAUTION General Warning Synthetic air compressor lubricants containing Silicone or WD40 will cause internal actuator damage and failure due to the solvents contained within these types of lubricants. Do not operate with covers open or removed. 2. To prevent the possibility of electric shock, make sure that the welder is properly grounded. Hold Time and the selectable Afterburst AB Delay parameters can be adjusted from all three welding modes. NOTICE Note that, while AB Time and AB Delay are selectable, they do not have to be set. The two parameters work in tandem if AB Time is selected, then AB Delay must also be selected, Afterburst is used to release workpieces that stick to the horn face after welding. When these limits are set, the welder will compare the actual values to your set limits. Once set, to store the current parameters, press one or both START SWITCHES, or press RESET. Ultrasonic energy starts and you may release the START SWITCHES when trigger conditions are met, It remains on until the weld parameters are met or until a general alarm or EMERGENCY STOP occurs. Ultrasonic vibrations are activated, The POWER BARGRAPH indicates loading usually in the 20% 100% range. If any errors are encountered, the welder will not enter the READY state, If no errors are encountered, the welding parameters are set to those stored. If the DIP switch is OFF, this group of alarms will become nonlatching alarms. If the DIP switch is ON, this group of alarms will become latching alarms. LLS Function Latchable The LLS input met the conditions for an LLS error as defined by the LLS control DIP switches. Absolute Limit Error Latchable Plus absolute limit exceeded Error 32 or minus absolute limit not reached, or weld aborted because of overload. Examine all mating surfaces. If contaminants build up inside the Air Filter, you can bleed the filter by turning the brass nut on the bottom. If your Air Filter leaks or gets dirty, follow the instructions below.

Failure to do this leaves the welder under potentially dangerous air pressure. To view this site, you must enable JavaScript or upgrade to a JavaScriptcapable browser.
